

Eneech'ùh chihvyàh (Teet'it Gwich'in & Gwichya Gwich'in)

K'àii neech'ùh chihvyàh (Vuntut Gwitchin)

Willow Bark Net

"Before the white people came into this country, we made fish nets out of willow bark ... The only thing about those fish nets was they had to be in water all the time to keep soaked. They were much stronger than the nylon nets you get today."

— Lucy Vaneltsi,
Teet'it Gwich'in Elder, 1970s

© Canadian Museum of Civilization, VI-I-16, photo Marie-Louise Déruaz, IMG2010-0112-0005-Dm (above)

© Canadian Museum of Civilization, VI-I-16, photo Marie-Louise Déruaz, IMG2010-0112-0004-Dm (close-ups below)

Available Spring 2012

An on-line exhibit of Gwich'in items from the Canadian Museum of Civilization.

A partnership between the
CMC, GSCI and Vuntut Gwitchin.

Gwich'in Social and Cultural Institute
www.gwichin.ca